

Prompt-1: Generate 50 keywords for the skills section

Suggest the top 50 keywords I can use in my LinkedIn profile skills section, which will help me appear in the recruiter's search when a recruiter is looking for someone with my skill set.

Prompt-2: Write LinkedIn Headline

Write a LinkedIn headline using the headline formula below.

Job Title | Top Keyword 1 | Top Keyword 2 | Top Keyword 3 | Top Keyword 4 | Value proposition statement

For example, a Marketing Director could use a headline like "Marketing Director | Social Media Expert | Email Marketing | PPC Expert | Customer Engagement & Retention | Passionate About Mission Focused Brands & Companies.

Prompt-3: About Section

Write 2000 characters for the "About Section" of my LinkedIn using the instruction below.

The "About" section of a LinkedIn profile should be a hit, as it sets the tone for the rest of the profile. It should be detailed but compact, engaging, and use relevant industry jargon as necessary. Make sure to provide a brief rundown of the main technical skills related to his job title.

Here's a breakdown of the content you can include in the detailed 2,000-character description:

Hook the audience right away and make the first sentence count by showing passion and revealing the person's character.

Provide a professional introduction explaining the present role and framing past job titles.

Highlight successes and the services the person can offer to potential clients.

Include a call to action.

Remember, a good LinkedIn summary works like a "trailer" for the rest of the profile. It should show off the most relevant skills and best achievements. Unlike a resume summary, you can get truly personal on the LinkedIn profile by telling a real-life story and revealing the human within.

Prompt-4: JD-1

Rewrite the job description for the most recent job based on the following instruction:

It should not be more than 150 words.

The "Experience" section is crucial once you have caught the attention of potential recruiters. Use this section to showcase successes and work experiences. Make this section comprehensive.

Make sure to include metrics in job descriptions for each role, as they help build proof that the person possesses the required skills.

Use this formula when writing about achievements for the role: success verb + noun + metric + outcome.

To stand out, add three to five bullet points that highlight key accomplishments. These could be core achievements and the key results of how the person added value to his/her company. Using tangible results can help catch attention.

Prompt-5: JD-2

Rewrite the job description for the 2nd most recent job based on the following instruction:

It should not be more than 150 words.

The "Experience" section is crucial once you have caught the attention of potential recruiters. Use this section to showcase successes and work experiences. Make this section comprehensive.

Make sure to include metrics in job descriptions for each role, as they help build proof that the person possesses the required skills.

Use this formula when writing about achievements for the role: success verb + noun + metric + outcome.

To stand out, add three to five bullet points that highlight key accomplishments. These could be core achievements and the key results of how the person added value to his/her company. Using tangible results can help catch attention.

Prompt-6: JD-3

Rewrite the job description for the 3rd most recent job based on the following instruction:

It should not be more than 150 words.

The "Experience" section is crucial once you have caught the attention of potential recruiters. Use this section to showcase successes and work experiences. Make this section comprehensive.

Make sure to include metrics in job descriptions for each role, as they help build proof that the person possesses the required skills.

Use this formula when writing about achievements for the role: success verb + noun + metric + outcome.

To stand out, add three to five bullet points that highlight key accomplishments. These could be core achievements and the key results of how the person added value to his/her company. Using tangible results can help catch attention.

